What is a community plan?

Community Plans provide a framework for positive mandated action by both the people and organisations within any given community. It is also a reference document for government agencies with responsibilities to contribute to the wellbeing of residents.

Unique to Maketu, in 2006 tangata whenua held their own parallel process which fed into the overall plan giving a real solidarity to the final plan.

Structurally, Maketu’s plan details the overall agreed visions. To achieve the visions, these are broken down into practical goals and each goal details a number of individual “actions”.

Word from the Maketu Project Team Chair

The Maketu Community Plan was formulated by many people over a 12 month period and is an empowering document for the people of Maketu.

On the plans completion in 2007, it became obvious that the actions in it would need to be purposefully initiated to avoid the plan sitting on a shelf. The Maketu Projects Team was formed to start implementing the actions as decreed by the community. The team has a representative from most groups in Maketu plus WBOPDC, Regional Council and Te Arawa Lakes Trust. All groups retain their full autonomy.

To date, as a result of the plan, Maketu has footpaths, BBQs, security cameras, historic markers, Pou and a bus shelter. The Kotukutuku gully is a place of pride and although the spit and dotterels are not part of the plan they are a very visible entity. Less visible, is the improved health, culture and wellbeing of the community. It is now 7 years since the original plan and we went back to the people to review and renew. This document is the result of those meetings.

Trevor Hughes

Chair | Maketu Projects Team.

These following four principles of the plan encapsulate what is important to the people of Maketu.

Tino Rangatiratanga

Ko te whaakinatanga o te Tino Rangatiratanga – e whakanui ana ano hoki i nga taonga tuku iho.

Self Determination is acknowledged – our cultural heritage is respected.

Whanaunatanga

Ko te whanaungatanga te mauri o te Iwi. He waahanga nui te whanaungatanga mo te rohe whaanui o Maketu

Connectedness is the life force of the people and relationships are an important part of our community

Kaitiakitanga

Ko toona kaupapa ko te aata tiaki ko te raahui me te whakau i te mauri ki toona Taiao.

The principle of guardianship ensures we respect and protect the mauri (life force) of the environment

Te Whai Hua

Ko nga whakaritenga whai hua e tautoko ana i te aahuatanga noho o Maketu.

Economic activity supports and promotes the coastal village character of Maketu

Why was the Maketu plan reviewed?

The review was triggered when the Maketu Projects Team asked Council to review the old plan. The community had changed, many of the old goals had been achieved, and new and worthwhile goals were emerging, but not yet ratified by the people. Not all of the actions in the plan have been undertaken by members of the Maketu Project Team. Anyone is free to fulfil the goals set out.

Many of the actions in the original plan are still completely valid and that is why this review doesn't replace the old plan, but just extends it and gives emphasis to the new actions.

Whose plan is it?

The Maketu Community Plan was initiated, discussed, and implemented by the community. It contains their voice, and their mandate.

Council's role was to facilitate the process, record all of the information given at public meetings, and write it up.

Maketu statistics

Census results 2006 – 2013:

The proportion of Maori residents in Maketu is 63%. For the District it is 17% and in the whole of New Zealand, 15%.

The District's population increased by 5% overall, but decreased in Maketu by 11% to 1,047. But from 1996 to 2013 the census shows a total of 6% for Maketu growth overall.

In parallel with the population decrease of 2006 - 2013, the privately owned and occupied dwellings also decreased by 9% to a total of 47%. Rented dwellings were 37% compared with the District's 30%.

64% of households are "one family" and 26% are "one person" households.

In 2013, the top three industries where people are employed in Maketu are: Manufacturing (16%), Agriculture, Forestry and Fishing Sector (11%), and Health Care/Social Assistance (11%).

46% of the population are full time employees and 36% (compared to 33% nationally), are not in the labour force.

Why was the 2007 Maketu plan so successful?

Initially it gave clarity to issues and mandate to actions.

But its greatest achievement was establishing a point of unity where people could come together in agreement. In a small community any action undertaken had a “crossover effect” onto other groups, often leading to speculation and uncertainty. Membership on the MPT enabled people to see what others were up to. This group provided the venue to iron out concerns and ultimately opened the door to greater co-operation.

Major achievements/platform for success

Ko ahau a Maketu. Ko Maketu ahau.

The physical results of this plan can be seen in some of the major projects completed so far.

1. The Pouwhakarae, showing its distinct Ngati Whakaue carving style, stand at the entrances to Maketu as gateways, and also show tangata whenua’s strong tupuna and Te Arawa links.
2. The Kotukutuku Gully enhancement where thick mats of climbing weeds and piles of car bodies made way for a walking path and native plantings is a good example of a project where everyone got involved.
3. The Healthy homes working group continues previous work to improve the health and safety of homes in Maketu with insulation, advice and minor repairs.
4. Installing security cameras at key locations and other community safety focused projects such as the introduction of the neighbourhood support network, have had a significant effect on reducing crime, making the village a lot safer.
5. The installation of the new footpath in front of the surf club and the BBQs have been a great focus point and source of community pride and ownership. Whanaungatanga in action.
6. Work on the spit and adjacent wetlands is helping to protect the few remaining wild areas, reverse the trends of indigenous species decline, and control unsightly weed infestations.
7. The seven historic markers combine the aspirations of tangata whenua and Pakeha, explain historic sites and create a walking trail for both visitors and locals.

Where to from here?

During the review process the community identified a number of key issues or projects.

These are some of the significant actions that emerged during the planning process, which have a high priority.

Tino Rangatiratanga – Self Determination

MPT co-ordinator

A significant part of the improved health and well being of the community is the position of Community co-ordinator. A priority of this plan is to secure a continuation of this position.

Whanaunatanga – Connectedness

Multi-purpose Hub

The strongest theme in this plan review has been the demand for a multi-purpose hub.

Exactly what this would look like would need to be determined by a preliminary investigation of community needs. It has been recommended to contain any combination; a meeting place, youth centre, gymnasium, sports facilities, office facilities etc. Part of this investigation would be consideration of available land options.

Kaitiakitanga – Guardianship

Kaimoana

Maketu is an important place for native wildlife and the harbour and coastal area has long had a reputation for providing kai for the local community. Preservation of kai is a key concern as is the development of a strategy to rid the village of its many problem weeds, notably pampas grass, wattle and blue morning glory.

Te Whai Hua – Economic activity

Tourism / Employment

This is a key area and the review identified several key areas where we could grow our economy, notable among these was tourism, the development of aquaculture and support for an improved public transport system.
